Reynolds Retires; Cleveland Named Vice President for Academic Affairs

Keld J. Reynolds

Robert E. Cleveland

After 45 years in higher education, Dr. Keld John Reynolds, vice president for academic affairs at Loma Linda University has decided to seek retirement, which will be effective July 1. He has served the University since November 1954, as dean of the faculties, a title that later became vice president for academic affairs.

Dr. Reynolds' announcement of his retirement was followed by the appointment of Robert E. Cleveland, PhD, at present the academic dean of Atlantic Union College in South Lancaster, Massachusetts. A biographical sketch of the new vice president will appear in next issue of University SCOPE.

Dr. Reynolds began his educational career in the fall of 1919 when he accepted a call to teach at Hutchinson Theological Seminary, Hutchinson, Minnesota.

A native of Copenhagen, Denmark (where he was born March 7, 1897), Dr. Reynolds can look back on years of growth in denominational higher education. He received his secondary and college education in Seventh-day Adventist schools and worked a lifetime to enrich programs of higher learning within the church.

Godfrey T. Anderson, PhD, president of Loma Linda University, in announcing Dr. Reynolds' retirement, expressed deep appreciation for the years he had given the University, as dean of the faculties of the College of Medical Evangelists in 1954 and as vice president for academic affairs, when the title was changed in 1958.

Dr. Anderson spoke with high regard of his colleague, who had stood by him since 1954, when both were appointed to their present positions. During the ten years at Loma Linda, Dr. Reynolds has witnessed a steady growth in educational facilities and in the academic structure of the University.

The University has added the Graduate School (established in 1954), the Dental Hygiene Curriculum (1959), Occupational Therapy Curriculum (1959), Medical Record Administration

In addition to regular weekly issues, advertising may be placed in a special souvenir edition of University SCOPE which will be published at the time of the commencement exercises and groundbreaking ceremonies for the University Medical Center June 4 through 7.

The General Telephone Company of California has assigned to the University a new telephone number for the San Bernardino interchange.

The new number: 889-3511.

Tickets Available For Talent Show

Tickets for a talent show sponsored by the junior class in the School of Physical Therapy to be May 9 are now available. The date first set was April 18, but was changed because of conflict with one-day campmeeting.

Tickets may be purchased for 95 cents each at the School of Physical Therapy, Kate Lindsay Hall, Daniells Hall, the University Pharmacy and at the Harris Company in San Bernardino and Riverside.

Twenty-five students from various schools of the University will participate in the two and one-half hour show, which will be in Landis Auditorium, Riverside. There also will be entertainment during intermission.

WHERE ACRES OF ORANGE GROVES used to be, an attractive sign now stands tall, carrying the architectural sketch of the projected Loma Linda University Medical Center. Last week there were traces of bonfires with orange logs burning long and lusty where the medical center will be, the groundbreaking being scheduled for June 7. Hill Church and the University Hospital can be seen in the background. — Staff photo.

University Hospital Hosts UC Residents Touring Campus

Loma Linda University Hospital last week hosted 12 hospital administrative residents from the University of California, Los Angeles, who were interested especially in viewing the facilities of the School of Medicine. The group was invited by Clarence A. Miller, Loma Linda University Hospital administrator and campus business administrator.

All at present are serving 12-month residencies in hospitals throughout southern California and will receive a Master of Science degree in Public Health at the end of the current semester. They meet together each Friday at UCLA for a seminar. This was conducted last week while they were in Loma Linda in Griggs Hall under the direction of Dr. Thomas Weil, UCLA professor.

Included in the residents' tour of the campus was a visit to the School of Dentistry clinic, Alfred Shryock Hall, where they saw a cadaver demonstration and the embryology museum, the Division of Public Health and Tropical Medicine and the accounting office, where James E. Yoder, head of the data processing department, gave a brief explanation of the IBM accounting system.

Tour guide for the group was Oliver L. Jacques, director of public relations. David D. Loge, administrative resident at Loma Linda University Hospital, served as host and coordinator of the tour.

Graduate School candidates should order commencement stationery supplies at the registrar's office before April 22 in order to meet the deadline.

According to the office of official publications, supplies should be available April 27 for candidates who ordered in February.

Staff Member on Speaking Tour of Her Native Chile

Irma B. Vyhmeister, associate professor of nutrition and dietetics, returned recently from a six-week stay in Chile, South America, where she visited her mother in addition to conducting a cooking school and lecturing on health and nutrition at the South Chile Conference campmeeting.

Mrs. Vyhmeister's demonstrations and lectures were designed as the beginning of a series to be promoted throughout the country by OFASA, a Seventh-day Adventist welfare organization.

She gave four lectures and four cooking demonstrations, to which, she said, the reaction was "very enthusiastic." In attendance at the presentations, in which Mrs. Vyhmeister tried to impress upon the people the need for using their own resources, were men as well as women.

The main staples there are beans, wheat, potatoes, vegetables, to a certain extent, and fruits when in season. Mrs. Vyhmeister demonstrated and explained the use of foods which are available but not widely used, such as corn meal, powdered milk and vegetable proteins.

Another point which she stressed to her audience is that "cooking is an art and science, not menial work."

She was born in Chile, where her parents were immigrants from Switzerland. Before coming to the United States, she taught at Colegio Adventista de Chile, a junior college. In 1956, Mrs. Vyhmeister was graduated from La Sierra College with a major in foods and nutrition. In 1958 she received a Master's degree from the University School of Nutrition and Dietetics.

Board of Medical Examiners
Passes 27 Physical Therapists

The Board of Medical Examiners, State of California, announced recently that all 27 graduates of the University School of Physical Therapy who took the State Examination for the Practice of Physical Therapy passed the test, qualifying as registered physical therapists.

Twenty-six of the graduates were from the class of 1963 and one from the class of 1962.

Those from the 1963 class were: Glenn H. Barlow, Robert C. Bevins, Clinton O. Bond Jr., James A. Bradford, Leslie W. Breckenridge, Mickey F. Campbell, Thomas J. Cates Jr., William D. Cox, Christina M. L. Fong, Marjorie E. Fowler.

Keith R. Gaden, Donna J. Grey, Ruth V. Hablutzal, Dale H. Hammersly, Margaret M. Jones, Barnell E. Lambert, Yvonne C. LeVox, Darlene C. Libby, E. Willie McCloud.

Donald D. Morrill, Joanne K. Parham, Elizabeth A. Pramann, James P. Ragan, Wesley L. Ringerling, Don C. Schneider and Howard W. Sulzle.

From the class of 1962 was Earl D. DeWitt.

Three members of the class of 1963 who are in the eastern United States and did not take the examination are Russell Dobbert, Monona C. Hiett and Lloyd A. Newman.

The five-hour examination is given in three parts, basic sciences, medical sciences and physical therapy theory and practice. It is administered twice a year in southern California and twice a year in northern California, according to Ronald A. Hershey, educational director in the School of Physical Therapy.

Forty-two of the 50 states now require an examination before allowing practice of physical therapy, he says, and the remaining states have laws to the same effect pending in their legislatures.

Many states accept test results reciprocally, however, California does not accept results from any other state.

(1962) and a Division of Religion (1955) which is providing instruction in religion for all academic units of the University.

It was during these years of growth that plans for consolidation of the School of Medicine were made (1962) and plans laid for an extensive building program at Loma Linda for a medical center. It meant the further implementation of an academic program as well, Dr. Anderson pointed out. Thus Dr. Reynolds was charged with the responsibility of an intensive program of academic planning.

During all this, he has maintained a relaxed frame of mind. "He is a man of many friends," the president said. "His ability to enjoy people and, in turn, to make people enjoy being with him has made him a delightful and important member of the University family. He will be missed by all when he leaves this campus at the end of the school year," concludes Dr. Anderson.

45 Years Since Wedding

In 1919 Keld Reynolds graduated from Pacific Union College while in nearby St. Helena Sanitarium his fiancée, Olga

Grace Hanson, received her nurse's cap. They were married shortly after in Fresno and went to Hutchinson, Minnesota, where Scandinavian pioneers had formed a Seventh-day Adventist Theological Seminary.

In 1921, the Reynolds went to Oak Park Academy in Iowa. He was teacher and dean of boys there until 1926, when he accepted an appointment as teacher at La Sierra College in Arlington, California.

While at La Sierra College he completed his work for the Master of Arts degree which he received from the University of Southern California in 1932.

He was named dean of La Sierra College in 1936 and chairman of the college department of history in 1939. By the time he was ready to move to a position in Washington, D. C., Reynolds had met the requirements for, and received, his doctorate from the University of Southern California. That was in 1947.

While he was an associate secretary in the department of education of the General Conference of Seventh-day Adventists, Dr. Reynolds edited the JOURNAL OF TRUE EDUCATION, a position he held until his appointment to Loma Linda University in 1954.

Dr. and Mrs. Reynolds have two children, Marjorie and Richard.
